

Temple Grandin - Slaughterhouse Designer

Temple Grandin is autistic. She thinks in pictures. She is an accomplished animal behaviouralist. And she single-handedly revolutionised the slaughterhouse chute.

She builds curves into her designs. So the cow always thinks it's going back to where it started. To the field. To freedom. The cow plods on. "Just a bit further and I'll be okay." Until it is too late. The cow follows the last bend and arrives at the killing room. Within seconds, she's immobilised in the crush, stunned and dispatched.

Think about the lockdowns. Social distancing. Masks. Vaccine passports. They're building a slaughterhouse chute around us.

Most people won't even notice. Once they've been tricked into having the jabs, they're heavily invested in the narrative. They don't want it to be untrue. So they'll keep on complying. They'll keep on having the boosters. Every six months. Then every three months. They'll do whatever they are told.

"Just another week to flatten the curve."

"Just another freedom gone."

"Just another jab."

The events of 9/11 tore the Bill of Rights to shreds. A dozen terrorist attacks could have brought in complete totalitarian control a decade ago. This isn't about control. And it's not about money. These people can print money. They can buy entire countries.

So what is it about? In a word: resources. A century ago, human population was 1.8 billion and a barrel of oil extracted 100 barrels of oil from the ground. Today human population is 8 billion and a barrel of oil yields just 5 barrels.

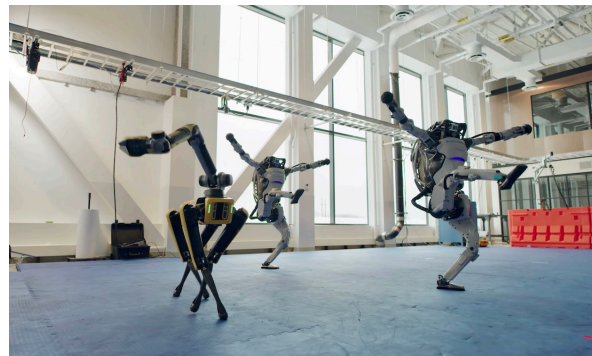

We're rapidly approaching a zero sum game. The last ever barrel of oil.

Remember the Deepwater Horizon disaster? They were drilling for oil 3.5 miles below sea level, in water almost a mile deep. The prize? Enough oil to meet global demand for 12 hours. That was 12 years ago.

I believe that the elites have already made their decision. They are acting before it is too late. Sixty four percent of the human population have already been jabbed. For a few tens of millions of carefully selected humans, there is a bright future indeed. The remaining resources will stretch for a thousand years. They will reach for the stars.

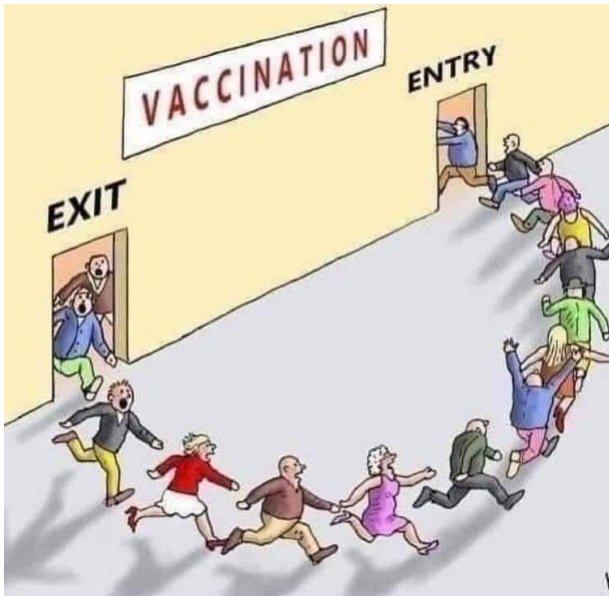

But if the elites don't act, human population will continue to climb exponentially until modernity comes to an abrupt end in a few short decades. Along with all of the resources. They're ready to do away with the useless eaters. It's 2022. Machines think, robots dance, and we just eat everything and burn stuff. Their stuff.

Ask yourself this question. Do the perpetrators really want control over the 8 billion consumers of their precious resources... or do they just want the resources?

It's a no-brainer. I believe that is why they're pulling the plug now. If they cull Western civilisation, they can halt 80% of global consumption in one hit. Then they can cull the Third World at their leisure.

So the vaccines do have a purpose, but it is not about profits or controlling who you can go to the movies with. That kind of control is expensive. It's resource hungry. Our own governments are telling us that most of our jobs will be automated within a decade anyway. They're literally telling us that it's over.

We need to change the way people think about what's been done to them. The vaccine is NOT a means to bring in vaccine passports and totalitarian control. Stories about dark, dystopian futures for billions of people are just as much a fiction as tales of clean, renewable energy forever and an electric car for everyone.

The vaccine passports and totalitarian controls are simply tools to coerce us into taking the vaccine.

How does the vaccine passport accomplish this? It starts with your livelihood. You lose your job. You become unemployable. Then you can't go to concerts or to the theatre. Or restaurants. Soon, you can't go to supermarkets. Or convenience stores. Then you're barred from doctor's surgeries and dentists. And hospitals. Then you can't get on a plane or train or ship. Or even a bus. Eventually, you can't get car insurance or drive. Or leave your house. Or have a bank account. Or pay your bills. Or your taxes. Or own property. It's a very slippery slope. Coupled with inflation and a cashless society, it will soon leave everyone dependent upon the State.

There are no exemptions to the vaccine. Even if you get spooked, or have a reaction to the jab, you're still trapped inside the social credit system. Your COVID Pass will expire the moment you say, "No!". You will be denied the basic freedoms of civilised society until you comply. You will stand at the brink of homelessness and hunger. And so you will keep on having the jobs. And getting sicker and sicker as your immune system deteriorates.

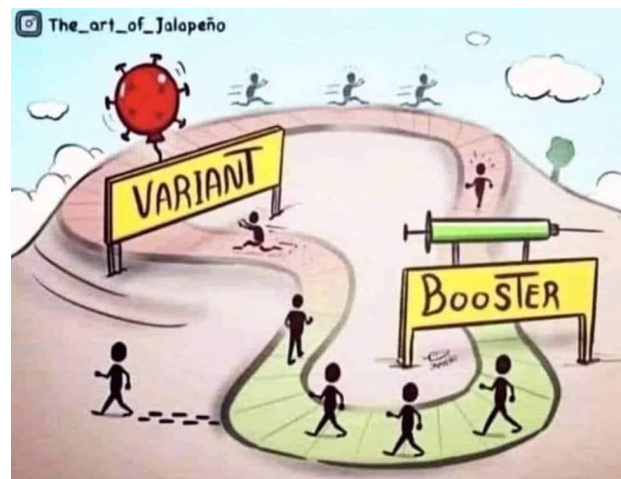

The slaughterhouse chute is almost complete. Our politicians are cheerfully helping to herd us into it with the stunning lack of vision that only politicians seem to possess.

If the government, judicial system, law enforcement, healthcare services, etc, are unsympathetic now, imagine how they'll be when all the anti-vaxxers are sacked.

Meanwhile, the police will abuse their powers. The judges will throw our cases out. The consultants will shrug. The bankers will look at the bottom line. And the politicians will take their bribes as they have for centuries.

We need to black pill the man in the street and start a chain reaction of truth. He is probably less deeply hypnotised. We don't have long.

If we don't create a stampede away from the slaughterhouse chute right now, we might as well give up and take the kill shot.

I'm just watching how many laps fill they all wake up.
